Conductix-Wampfler USA is committed to the well-being and operational safety and health (OS&H) of all employees and visitors. We have incorporated a Zero Harm focused OS&H management system into our business practices thru:

- Establishing and documenting operational safety and health guidelines
- Making every manager, supervisor, and employee accountable for the prevention of occupational illness and injuries
- Identifying workplace hazards and implementing controls to reduce OS&H risk
- Establishing OS&H objectives that address risks and opportunities, and continually improve our OS&H management system
- Consulting with and gaining the participation of our workers in establishing, maintaining, and improving the OS&H management system
- Complying with all legal and other requirements
